A Cross section of crowd at the peer-educated conference.

More than 20 UWI, Mona, Jamaica-educated doctors, who graduated in 1987, brought their families to Tobago on 20-23 July to be part of the class' reunion event. It's the first time the reunion was held here.

The event - which brought together doctors from Jamaica, Bahamas, Barbados, Grenada, St Lucia, India, Dominica, Guyana and Trinidad and Tobago - was a peer-educated occasion which gave participants the opportunity to get up-to-date information on acute stroke management, island medicine- urology, deceased organ donation and ageing.

In 1987 when the doctors graduated from the Jamaican institution, it was the only University of the West Indies' (UWI) medical campus. Today, UWI has campuses in Trinidad, Barbados and Bahamas.
