

Great work, Samaroo

THE EDITOR: It is really inconceivable how a band like Amoco Renegades which virtually lit up the Savannah at the preliminaries and placed first could slump to such a low place (sixth) in the finals. Also, how could a band which barely made it into the National Semi place fourth in the finals? This is real inconsistent judging, especially as Renegades performed so well at the North Zone Finals.

As a panman with 20 years' experience, I am totally dissatisfied with the decision both in the North and East Zones. It seems there is a carefully orchestrated plot to destabilise and discourage one of the nation's greatest musical arrangers—Jit Samaroo, just as was done to southern maestro Lennox Bobby Mohammed in the early '70s.

It is the view of many that Boogsie is good, but not that great as people are making him out to be. Keep up the good work Jit. You are great,
