

Police Praise Behaviour Of Steelbandsmen

Police last night said the behaviour of the public and in particular steelbandsmen during the two days of Carnival was good.

This information was given shortly before nine o'clock last night, just three hours before official "shut up" time.

Police stated that there were some alarms received at Control Tower, Police Headquarters about skirmishes during the day, but in no instance Police riot squads rushing to the scene had cause to go into action.

On one occasion, an incident between two steelbands seemed to be a threat, but the members thrashed it out among themselves, no one received injuries and they went along merrily beating their steel instruments.

A man is reported to have been stabbed at Park Street in a family dispute during the afternoon.
