

Palms at the Botanic Gardens, Trinidad.

R. M. P. Chandiere,
 Port of Spain,
 Trinidad

POST CARD March 3rd '22.

My Dear Mother,
 CORRESPONDENCE.

ADDRESS.

I have spent a very pleasant day at Port of Spain, the capital of Trinidad. It was necessary to land from the Chandiere in a small steam launch, and we have just returned to the vessel. I have not found it too hot, but of course I cannot walk about too much in the sun; in the shade it is always pleasant. The churches and houses are always so cool. It doesn't seem any hotter than it is in the summer in England. Port of Spain is a well-built town with wide streets and good shops; it is more up-to-date than Bridgetown. There are electric trams. There is a nice cathedral.

Hope you are quite well.
 Your affectionate son, Cecil.

Davidson & Todd, Ltd., Trinidad.

British Manufacture Throughout.