

ROYAL TOUR OF FESTIVAL

Communal Radio Sets Urged For Port-of-Spain

Saying that in all important cities of the world, communal radio sets are installed for the benefit of the masses, Councillor C. B. Mathura gave notice of the following motion at a meeting of the City Council:

That this Council urge Govern-

FOLLOWING the dedication service for the Festival of Britain, the Royal Family visited the exhibition on the following day. The Queen Mother, Queen Elizabeth, King George VI and Prince Philip visited the South Bank Site and toured the £9,000,000 centre-piece of the Festival. On a grey sky and puddles on the exhibition roads it was a gloomy occasion. Queen Mary (the Queen Mother) toured the exhibition in a wheelchair but walked around some of the exhibits. Photo shows: Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison (left), Lord Skylon to Prince William of Gloucester (extreme left), Prince Michael of Kent. Further right are the Queen and Prince Philip in a wheelchair). Little Prince Richard of Gloucester is in the foreground. May 4, 1951.—(Paul Popper Photo)