HEALTH FOR ALL BY THE YEAR 2000

AND

PRIMARY HEALTH CARE

HOW ARE WE DOING?

CLAIRE BELGRAVE

Twelve years after the historic Alma-Ata Conference and with ten years to go to the year 2000, this study looks at how these concepts have penetrated health and sectors impacting on health as well as knowledge of them by patients using the health services in the Counties of St. George West and Central in Trinidad and Tobago.

Data collection was through questionnaires and interviews.

Most of the workers had heard of the concepts but for most, this knowledge was described as hazy or incomplete.

The majority of patients had never heard of Health For All by the Year 2000.
