PANMEN will begin to learn about business on Monday.

Twenty-nine of them are due to check into residential quarters at the Tembladora Training Centre, Chaguaramas, on Sunday for the five-week course which will be opened by Prime Minister Dr. Eric Williams on Monday at 9.30 a.m.

The panmen will come from every corner of the country.

Objective of the course, according to a Whitehall release is "to make steelbandmen aware of business practices and organisations, especially as they relate to the local business environment with a view to motivate steelbandmen to embark upon group business ventures."

Participants have been selected on a regional basis through their affiliation to Pan Trinbago following a decision at the recently held National Consultation on Steelbandmen.

The course is being organised jointly by officials of the Prime Minister's Office, the Central Training Unit, other government ministries, the Productivity Centre, the Industrial Development Corporation and the executive of Pan Trinbago.

Selected for the course are the following:
