

Strategies and Practicalities for the Use of Open Access Resources

By Nicholas L. Cop

Affiliation: COP | Digital Information Solutions S.A. de C.V, Mexico City

Abstract:

Open Access resources provide you and your users, including researchers, with authoritative, peer-reviewed information. You will learn how you can determine what you can do with these materials in practice to support your users and institutional activities and strategies. You will also learn of the different rights issues that you need to address and include as part of your strategies for the delivery of information to users, and for inclusion in other systems such as your institutional repositories.