

AN INVESTIGATION OF THE ATTITUDES AND PERCEPTIONS ABOUT ANIMAL ABUSE IN TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO

Students: Orlando Felicioli, Tulya Seebaransingh, Aaron Ramdeo, Nayan Timla

Supervisors: Dr. Sabrina Thomas, Dr. Lisa Benjamin, Dr. Roxanne Charles

Animal abuse and neglect remains a prevalent issue in Trinidad and Tobago. The effects of abuse on animals can be long term and severe, and often, the general public is not fully aware of the laws that are in place against physical cruelty against animals. We aim to understand how the general public feels about the problem of animal abuse and what exactly they consider as 'abuse'. This investigation will be done through the online distribution and collection of confidential questionnaires. We are hopeful that the information gathered can serve as insightful groundwork for organizations developing educational programmes for the general public.
